Coal-Energy for London.—A Marching Army of Hills.—Not a Fuel for the Man-Engine.—The Coming Railway Climbs.—A Great World-Nerve.
—A Paleontological House.—Gems from Trees.—Sulphur Filled Wood.

To improve upon the present methods of bringing coal to London is a fascinating problem. By the plan of H. H. Thwaites, cheap slack would be used for producing gas, which would supply engines for driving electric generators, and a current of 60,000 volts would be sent from the coal fields over 120 miles of wire to the metropolis. The fuel would cost about two-fifths as much as is usually paid while there would be an enormous saving in the rent of land for generating stations. A project of Arthur J. Martin is to generate gas at the coal mines of South Yorkshire, and transmit it under a pressure of 300 pounds per square inch by a pipe line of 173 miles. The 40,000 millions of cubic feet of gas required annually by greater London could be conveyed through a single line of pipes 25 inches in diameter. Though the pipe line would cost $7,000,000 or $8,000,000, and 40,000 horse-power would be needed to compress the gas, it is estimated that the London companies could be supplied with gas at 15 cents per 1000 feet—much below present cost.

The crescent-shaped sand-dunes which move in thousands across the desert of Islay, near La Jolla, Peru, have been investigated by Astronomer S. I. Bailey, who found the points of a crescent to be 160 feet apart, while the convex side measured 477 feet, and the greatest width was more than 100 feet. The estimated weight was 8,000 tons, yet it was carried 125 feet a year by the prevailing south winds.
Novel experiments by Prof. A. Durig have proven that, while alcohol is theoretically a food, its efficiency is so small that half a gallon would be required to run the human machine for a day's mountain climbing. It diminished the amount of work performed by the body per minute about one-sixth.

The railway to the top of the Matterhorn, to be completed in four years at a cost of $1,250,000, will rank among the most interesting of the world's great elevators and will make accessible to all the grand view-point that defied all climbers until the memorable ascent in 1865 by Mr Whymper, Lord Douglas, and their companions. The road is to be operated on the familiar cog-wheel system. There will be two sections—one extending from the Viege station at Zermatt to the Matterhorn hut, and the second running from the hut through a tunnel 7650 feet long to a point within 60 feet of the summit, which has an altitude of 14,780 feet.
The upper terminus will embrace a number of rooms cut in the solid rock. It will be provided with various novel conveniences, not least of which will be a special chamber filled with compressed oxygen for tourists suffering from mountain sickness.

A remarkable telegraph circuit, 4,000 miles in length—probably the longest in the world—has been in operation more than a year between London and Tehran. It traverses the North Sea for 200 miles, and passes through Belgium, Germany, Russia, Turkey in Asia and Persia. Wheatstone automatic transmitters and receivers are employed. By this system from 80 to 400 words per minute can be transmitted while only 25 to 35 can be sent by the Morse hand apparatus.
At ten stations—Lowestoft, Embden, Warsaw, Berlin, Kouno, Odessa, Kerch, Sukhum Kaleh, Tiflis and Tauris—are automatic repeaters, which take the place of operators.

Near the Medicine Bow River, in Wyoming, is the oldest cabin known, the property of a Mexican sheep-herder. A deposit of fossil bones 50 yards square was found at this spot, and the foundation and walls of the structure have been built from remains of dinosaurs, brontosaurs and a great variety of other creatures of the Cretaceous Age. An ancient stream seems to have brought to a common cemetery bodies of every kind of animal of the region.

"Plant stones" seem to be among the rarest of the strange products of the Philippine Islands. The tabashir is a variety of opal sometimes deposited in the joints of the bamboo, and the beautiful greenish pink scintillating specimens of the Philippines are stated by a German publication to be much more costly than the ordinary opal. Thousands of rare staples may be examined without finding one of these curious gems, which are probably the result of disease or injury. Beautiful bluish pearls or stony secretions are occasionally formed in some cocoanuts, and are found—ranging in size from a pinhead to a pea—by carefully examining the interior of ripe nuts. About a dozen of these exquisite pearls—all from the Philippines—are said to be preserved among the treasures of European museums.

The preservation of wood with sulphur, applied in liquid form is gaining special favor in Germany. The material completely fills the cell spaces of the fiber, and at moderate temperatures it is little affected by water, acids, and alkaline solutions, though it oxidizes readily at high temperatures. Poplar is best adapted for this treatment, results with oak and pine being less satisfactory.
Natural soap baths are not an unmixed blessing. The curious soap spring that forms a wonder of a village in Timor, East Indian Islands, consists of a small elevated mud cone, from which bubbles up water heavily charged with alkali and radium, the discharge giving the appearance of a miniature volcano. A disadvantage of such a washing place is that vegetation is ruined for miles around.
Heating with "wood wool" and compressing is a new method of converting horn cuttings into a plastic material. The vegetable fiber increases the strength, giving also an attractive mottled appearance to the finished product.

The Mines are Still Closed.
The strike situation in this town remains unchanged, nothing new having developed during the past week.
On Monday night H. G. Stevenson, secretary of the Utica Gold Mining Company, arrived here and in conversation with The Record stated that the Utica company fully endorsed the stand taken by Superintendent Martin.
He stated that the action was under instructions from the company and that he had not acted as he did, they would have discharged him and employed a superintendent who would have carried out their orders.
He further stated that all rumors about a compromise was only idle talk, as the company would in no way listen to such proposition and that it would be on the old basis of wages.
The superintendents of the Lightner and Angels mines say that they will not operate their properties, except under the old order of wages.
As a result, the outlook is far from bright and at present it looks as though this town, with its record as one of the busiest on the Mother Lode, would soon be a thing of the past. The cutting off of a monthly payroll of $50,000 is a serious proposition and means that the merchants of Angels Camp will have to look elsewhere for investment. In fact one of the largest firms here, that of Lagomarsino Brothers, have now commenced preparations for discontinuing their business.
This means that the real sufferers, in addition to the merchants, will be those who by their thrift and industry have established themselves in different lines of business and also those of the workmen who have built their homes, but will now have to seek employment elsewhere.—Angels Record.

STARTS WITH DIME
ENDS WITH $6500.
"From a shoestring to a tanany" was the remark that greeted Jack Connor, "soldier of fortune," as he walked from the door of the Monte Cristo gambling house with $6500 of the house's gold in his pocket after a stay of a few hours. Connor had entered the palace of chance without a cent. He saw 10 cents on the floor and he picked it up. It was the foundation of his fortune.
He had been in Goldfield but a few short hours when he went into the Monte Cristo. On the floor his eye connected with a 10-cent piece. He picked up the coin from the floor and walking over to a nearby roulette wheel, placed it on "17," the gambler's number. There was a heavy play at the time, but little attention was paid to Connor's bet. "Seventeen in the black," drawled the dealer, and calmly proceeded to take and pay the numerous bets strung out on the layout. "Thirty-five for one, and your money back," drawled the dealer as he laid three dollars and a four-bit piece beside the dime.
Connor picked up the money and elbowed his way to a faro game.
Luck was still with him, and as he won he increased the size of his bets.
The Monte Cristo has the highest limit of any house in town, $100 in cases, and Connor was not long in reaching it. The pikers soon quit, and he had the layout to himself for the greater part of the time, with a dense crowd gathered around the table watching the play. Time after time did he call the turn, until, at last, weary of the game, he cashed in $6500 winner off a dime which he found on the floor.

Letter From an Old Pioneer.
On my return from Jackson on the morning of April 30, John Eckart called on me to mow the grass off his lot near the mouth of Soldiers' gulch, and to prepare and plow the same to plant in potatoes by the following Wednesday. Within two hours after I started to work, I was informed that Eckart had just died of heart trouble. He was well fixed financially, and leaves considerable money and property to his two daughters, Mrs. Roberts and Mrs. McDonald of Stockton. He is the fifth superintendent who has passed over the great divide since the organization of the Volcano Gold Gravel Mining Company. The company was organized in 1876, and N. G. Young made the first survey preliminary to organization. I furnished the first supplies, and did the first work, and put on the first men to run the tunnel.
Benjamin Ross did the surveying, and I carried the flag. We found the tunnel had to be 2200 feet long, coming out at south branch 43 feet 6 inches lower than the old tunnel. All the years the Volcano flat has been worked, and large returns have gone to the stockholders. Now, I am told, the basin is to be sold for reservoir purposes. It is said the flat has already been bonded for that purpose by the McLaughlin estate.

On the 20th of June, 1852, I crossed the Missouri river, near Council Bluffs, on my way to California. In the company were 50 wagons, James Stewart captain, who was emigrating to Salt Lake. I attended to captain Stewart's baggage wagon for passage through. We reached Salt Lake September 22d. All the way up the Platte river the trail was strewn with graves, until we reached the Rocky mountains. We only lost one in our train—old man Stevens, who on the night preceding his death was on guard with me. Every time it rained the cattle broke. Twice I heard his voice on the other side of the camp calling the hours as they passed.
"One o'clock and all is well." That hour the guard was changed. He retired to his wagon, and I to my tent. In the morning he was dying, and so passed away.

We followed the trail of the Pathfinder, Fremont, for whom I cast my first vote for president in 1860, and have voted for every republican president since that time.

March 10, 1853, I left Salt Lake, taking the southern route for California, passing through several new settlements in a rich and fertile country. We passed over the river of the basin to Mountain Meadows—a beautiful place—where we camped two days. The Mountain Meadow massacre occurred in 1877. From here we passed through an Indian country. The Indians stampeded our stock and killed one of our men.
Several times we were lined up in battle array to save the company from massacre. We passed over the 54 mile desert mostly in the night, and arrived in San Bernardino on the 15th of May. I reached Stockton August 22, 1853.

The Labor Situation in Amador.

The request for recognition of the miners' union of the Western Federation upon the mine owners around Jackson has created a feeling of unrest in all classes. The uncertainty is having a very prejudicial effect upon business, which has not been brisk any way for some time. Extreme measures on the part of the union miners at this juncture would be folly, even though the companies should positively decline to recognize the union. The mines have been running along without any recognition of labor organizations so far, and it could hardly be expected that mine owners will assume a different attitude toward unionism now to that which they have taken heretofore. The probability is that pressure to accomplish that end would result in the shutting down of the mining industry.

Angels Camp presents today a striking example of the effect of work of labor agitators, who are in reality pushing a campaign, not in the interest or for the benefit of the toilers, but against property and employers generally. Their creed is to break up the wage system entirely. Higher wages and shorter hours are merely a mask to hide the ultimate design to abolish the relationship of employer and employee. The extremists of these walking delegates—the hold-up men of the industrial world—freely admit that there is no stopping place in their crusade short of the break-up of the present system of wage-paying. Angels, heretofore the liveliest towns in Calaveras, and one of the best business centers in the mountains, is a dead camp today. Agitators, by inflaming and prejudicing the minds of the miners, can bring about ruin, but they are impotent to restore prosperity to that stricken camp. Her industry is paralyzed, the mines are filling up with water, business houses are closing, and her population is leaving by the hundreds. Everything points to a permanent abandonment of mines which have given employment to hundreds of men, and imparted life to the town. What do these alien agitators care for the ruin their evil preachings have wrought? They are merely birds of passage and of prey. They can gather their grip sack and leave the scene of wreckage without monetary loss to themselves, departing for new fields of industry to lay waste with their infamous doctrines. Even the presence of such men has a damaging effect upon every class of business.

The attitude of the mine owners is pretty well understood. They will maintain the "open-shop" principle in their mines, employing whom they please without regard to affiliation or non-affiliation with any labor organization. Rather than surrender this right to hire laborers without dictation, the mines hereabouts would probably close-down as they have closed in the erstwhile thriving town of Angels. Such an outcome might give birth to exultation on the part of agitators, but what would the miners gain thereby; what benefit would those toilers who have their homes and families here reap? The grip-sack brigade can tramp elsewhere, in search of employment, and hug the delusion that they will feel no harm. But even this class must realize that eventually the ruinous system will overtake them also. Industrial centers cannot be paralyzed one after another without suffering to the masses of toilers. It is as certain as the decrees of fate, that wage-earners cannot prosper without the prosperity of the wage-payers, and the sooner the workers understand this, and act accordingly, the better will it be for all concerned.

A Starvation Reservation.

The conditions of the Indian reservation, some three miles northeast of Jackson, is a reproach to the national government. Geo. O. Grist is in charge of the reservation, and has made repeated efforts to secure funds from the authorities at Washington to carry on a benevolent work, but without avail. Lately he asked for the small appropriation of $325 for general supplies, seed, wheat etc., and received a reply that nothing could be done, inasmuch as the Indian agent C. E. Kelsey, living at Sau Jose, had not recommended the appropriation. The Indian colony housed within the reservation has dwindled down to twelve souls, all old and infirm, incapable of rustling for themselves. For more than two years the sum total received for the maintenance of these wards has been $25. Just think of it—an average of nine cents per head donated for the support and clothing of these native sons and daughters. Of course they have either to starve or beg, and they naturally choose the begging path, and in this way have become a nuisance to the white settlers in the neighborhood. It is a shame upon the national government that such things should be. This reservation is a curse instead of a blessing. It hinders instead of helps them to make a livelihood. Far better to abolish it altogether, than continue the existing farce.

An Effect of the Iron Trades' Strike.

An illustration of how the strike of the iron trades is driving business from San Francisco, is afforded by the fact that a few days ago there was received at the machine shop of Garbini Bros. a bucket belonging to one of the water wheels of the Standard Electric Company at Electra, used in the generation of electric energy. This bucket is a ponderous thing in itself, weighing 375 pounds with two bolts that fasten it to the wheel it weighs over 400 pounds. There are eighteen of these buckets on one wheel so that the aggregate weight of the buckets alone is in the neighborhood of four tons. The bucket in question had become broken at the eye, and was sent to the Dobbs foundry and machine works to be repaired. The strike came, and the work was left undone on their hands. In this emergency the casting was sent back to this county to be repaired. It may be seen at the Garbini Bros. machine works, awaiting to be put in working shape.

Miners' Union Meeting.

The regular meeting of the local Miners' Union W. F. M., was held Wednesday night. It was expected that the answer of the various mines to the request for recognition of the union, would come up for discussion, if not final action. Consequently there was a big gathering of the members. Nothing on this matter was done however, precisely why we are unable to explain. It is rumored, however, that the companies had made no direct reply to the request for recognition; that they wanted to be informed of the scope and effect of the recognition wanted. In fact they wanted to be enlightened fully as to the meaning of the request before answering. So the matter went over until Saturday, when another meeting is to be called. The session Wednesday was a stormy one, and it was evident to those on the outside that the members were wide apart on the questions debated. The "lie" was passed and much acrimony engendered. It is simply a contest between the radical and conservative wings of the organization—the hot-heads versus the level-headed members.

Jackson regrets to lose such a worthy citizen as Jay Wright. He will be greatly missed in social and business circles. The Ledger wishes him every success in his new field of labor.

Among the visitors in Jackson last week we forgot to mention Judge John Yule of Oakland. He arrived in this city Wednesday, and returned to Oakland the following day. He is president and principal stockholder of the Stone Canyon Consolidated Coal Mining Company, whose works are situated in the Gabilan mountains in the southeastern part of Monterey county. The editor of the Ledger visited this property two weeks ago, and was shown all through the works, embracing over 5000 feet of drifts and tunnels cut through a solid wall of coal the entire distance, averaging about fifteen feet in width. The idea is prevalent that no first-class coal has been discovered in California. This notion, however, has been disproved by the developments in Stone canyon. The product of this mine is only surpassed by the celebrated anthracite coal of Pennsylvania, and all the developments and indications point to a vast deposit—one which cannot be exhausted in a century of activity. The mine is situated twenty miles or more from the nearest railroad point, and hence the coal cannot be hauled profitably until cheap, rapid transportation is provided by the construction of a railroad to the mine. To the accomplishment of this task the company is now bending its energies, floating bonds bearing six per cent interest with a substantial bonus of stock as an additional inducement to investors. Mr. George Barbeck was in this county last week for the purpose of selling bonds. The visit of Judge Yule was also on business concerning the coal mine. The company is anxious to construct the railroad this year, and have the coal on the market by the beginning of next year.

Carl C. Jensen, optician, has visited Amador county for the past ten years. He comes well recommended. Reserve your orders for him. He can suit you. He will be at Langhorst's jewelry store next Monday, May 20, and remain for three days. E. A. Freeman left yesterday morning for his home in Fruitvale. While here, it is reported that he succeeded in disposing of his dwelling house on Broadway for $1800. It was sold to an Austrian family, and rumor has it that a boarding house will be conducted therein, after making necessary additions.

Miss Hilda Clough is here from San Francisco, visiting relatives. Garden hose, lawn sprinklers, lawn mowers, rakes, hoes and spades, in fact everything needed for lawn or garden at V. Giannoni & Co.

Jas. W. Martin, who pleaded guilty to highway robbery in holding up the Plymouth and Sacramento stage, was taken to Folsom last Friday, to serve his sentence of ten years.

The Jose Gulch Mining Company, whose works are at Butte basin, has levied another assessment of five cents per share, delinquent June 10.

Judge John F. Davis has been here for three days on legal business in connection with the Whitmore estate and other matters. Dr. L. E. Phillip's office is at his residence on Jackson Gate road, opposite California hotel.

Delegates Elected.

At the regular meeting of Ursula Parlor N. D. G. W., held Tuesday evening the following were elected delegates to the grand parlor which meets in Watsonville, Santa Cruz county, in July: Mrs. Carrie Calvin, Mrs. C. D. Peek and Miss Kate Driscoll. Four new members were initiated, all from Paloma. After the ceremonies the members partook of a substantial spread of raviolis, tomatoes, cake and coffee.

Dwelling House Burned.

About ten o'clock Tuesday night the fire alarm bell rang out its ominous sound, startling all who heard its warning notes. Only a small portion of the people heard the sound, however. Many of those on Main street, within two blocks of the fire house, where the bell is located, were unable to hear its peals of warning. The fire proved to be in the north part of town, the dwelling house belonging to Mrs. Genaro, on the Jackson Gate road, opposite the Savich boarding house, and occupied as a sleeping house in connection with his boarding place. It was used for sleeping rooms exclusively, and provided with electric lights throughout.

Volunteer fire fighters were speedily on the ground, and two streams of water were soon playing on the flames. The fire had gained considerable headway before the alarm was given, the whole interior of the building being a mass of flames, especially the rear part. In a few minutes after the water streams got into play the fire was under control. The building was a frame one entirely, and other frame dwellings were within a few feet on either side, Mrs. Genaro with her daughter, Mrs. Carley and family occupying the one to the south. The firemen managed to confine the damage entirely to the dwelling where the fire originated. That they were able to do such effective work was in a great measure due to the fact that the water main in that part of town was materially enlarged two or three years ago, thereby giving an ample supply for fire purposes.

How the fire originated is a mystery. There were thirteen beds in the house. Every apartment was provided with an electric light. There was no stove in the house, and no fire for either candles or coal oil lamps. Evidently none of these was used about the premises. Three of the lodgers had retired to bed. One was attracted by the heat that seemed to come from a dark closet in an adjoining room. Proceeding to this closet he found it was all ablaze. Evidently the roomers tried to extinguish the flames themselves before raising an alarm, and in that way much valuable time was lost.

Scarcely any of the furniture was saved, except that in the two front rooms.

The building is practically a total loss, although the roof was only partially burned off, and the outside charred in places. The interior of four rooms was charred to a cinder. An insurance of $800 was carried on the building, which will hardly cover the loss. The loss of furniture will amount to several hundred dollars.

It is supposed that the fire originated from smoking. In fact that is the only rational theory from the circumstances. There is no suspicion whatever of incendiarism. Perhaps one of the roomers had placed his pipe or cigar not fully extinguished in the pocket of his clothing, and thereafter hung the garment in the dark closet and went to bed.

Blue Rock Shooting.

There was more blue rock shooting by the members of the local gun club at their usual meeting place beyond the Zeila last Sunday afternoon. There was not so large an attendance of the sporting fraternity as on the previous meeting. Practice shooting was kept up the whole afternoon. Instead of having the total number of shots and hits published, it was decided to have one innings expressly for the press at each practice shoot. This is the score last Sunday out of 25 shots each:

C. Dal Porta	22
Gas Laverone	21
T. K. Norman	17
Wm. Hess	17
C. Ardittio	17
H. Stark	14

It is the intention of the club to have a bluey shoot at an early date. The county pays a bounty of two cents each for the scalps of these birds. So it is proposed to have a hunt expressly for these pests, and probably offer a reward for the highest individual score made.

Mahara's Minstrels.

A section of Mahara's minstrels struck Jackson Wednesday, giving a show in Love's hall that evening. Some people flock to a show given by a negro troupe just the same as to a circus. Perhaps this is because of the novelty of the thing, it certainly cannot be because of the superior character of the performance. We never saw a lot of negro performers yet that could begin to compare with whites either in minstrelsy or acting. Mahara's company is no exception to the rule. Except for one or two good voices in singing, they were a poor lot. Their jokes were of the flatest, and their acting was wretched. The only high tone part of the affair was the price of admission—$1 for reserved seats and 75c for unreserved or standing room. And they were not particular about selling reserved seats after all the seats were taken—in other words the money was taken, and the payees had to rustle their own seats or stand. The barking business was more in evidence than the minstrelsy. And the printer came in for a share of the fraud tactics. The Ledger's bill for advertising was refused payment on the flimsy pretext that the advance agent who ordered the same had neglected to O. K. the claim. The boss of the concern was high-minded enough to think this was a justification for wiggling out of the obligation. The amount was small, but had a magistrate been available at that hour of the night we would have taken legal proceedings to collect the amount, even though it cost many times the amount for costs. To our brother publishers we say look out for these colored folks. Get your advertising money in advance. That is the only safe way of dealing with such a combination.

Oldest Squaw Dies.

Manuela, the oldest squaw in the two counties of Amador and Calaveras, died on Saturday morning last, about three o'clock, at San Andreas. She belonged to the Indian camp at Scottsville, this county, and passed most of her days in that neighborhood under the shadow of Butte mountain. Her exact age is unknown, as is the case with nearly all the aboriginal inhabitants. They have no method of keeping count beyond the limit of a few moons. But it is generally conceded that the life of the deceased spanned nearly a century. Her recollections reached back far beyond the first settlement of the white man in this vicinity. She was apparently advanced in middle age when the first pioneers swarmed into this section in their quest of gold. With her passing into the great unknown, the last living link that connected the Indian regime with the advent of the white man has been broken.

Her "ambra"—husband—died several years back. At that time they were the two oldest Indians, and as such a photograph of the pair was taken at Mokelumne Hill some time prior to the old man's demise. The picture was secured after much persuasion, and with the additional aid of a little money. Nearly all Indians have a great aversion to being photographed. They balk before the camera lens. Manuela had twelve children, all of whom preceded her to the grave, except one son.

With the appearance of the gold-seekers, this Indian woman learned the business of prospecting for gold pretty thoroughly. In this way she managed to pick up enough to supply her with the necessities of life. She followed this avocation to within a few days of her death. Indeed, her last illness was, we are informed, the result of a prospecting trip into Calaveras county. She left the Scottsville camp a few days before her death, apparently in her accustomed health, and crossed into Calaveras, on a gold-hunting tour. She undertook to wade through a stream. From this act—extremely dangerous at her age—she contracted a cold, which rapidly developed into a fatal illness. She was removed to San Andreas, being unable to make the journey home. A doctor was summoned, but in spite of all that could be done, the vital forces gradually languished to a standstill. It was her dying wish that she be buried at the Indian cemetery on the government reservation in this county, some three miles northeast of Jackson. So the remains were conveyed from San Andreas to the Scottsville camp on Sunday. The survivors of the camp made a great powwow, according to aboriginal customs. The burial took place at the Indian reservation on Monday, the Diggers gathering from far and near to do honor to the memory of this veteran mother of the tribe.

Visit of Special Land Agent.

Under a recent law of congress it is necessary, before patent is finally issued in homestead or timber claims, that a special agent of the land office make a personal visit to each entered tract, investigate the facts, and report to the general land office. In compliance with this provision, H. C. Cullom, a nephew of U. S. Senator Cullom of Indiana, accompanied by his wife, spent over a week traveling through Amador county, visiting every homestead or other entry, for which final proof had been made, patents for which have been held up at Washington pending the outcome of the personal visit. He was in Jackson on Saturday, and the following day went up into Defender district, and the timber region beyond, to inspect the numerous entries which have been passed up to the general land office in that region. He expected to be engaged four or five days in that section. Mr. Cullom and wife are from Oakland. The Oakland Enquirer of May 11 contained an item to the effect that Henry C. Cullom, a retired real estate dealer and a brother of United States Senator Shelby M. Cullom of Illinois, was struck by an automobile at Hayward Thursday. Mr. Cullom, who is past sixty, is confined to his home at Berkeley as a result of the accident. The injured man is doubtless father of the special agent. Whether he had heard of the accident before he arrived here Saturday evening we do not know, but probably he had not, as he made no mention of the matter to those with whom he conversed.

Quietly Wedded.

At six o'clock Tuesday morning Jesse McLaughlin of Electra and Miss Idalia Giacobbe were united in the bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Giacobbe, on Water street. It was a quiet affair, only the close relatives and friends of the contracting parties being present as witnesses. The matrimonial knot was tied by Rev. M. Kearney, of the Catholic church. Miss Lois Mayhew of Stockton was bridesmaid, and John Fontenrose of Electra, groomsmen. After the ceremony the company partook of the wedding feast prepared for the occasion. Thereafter they were driven to Martells, the home leave-taking being signalized with the conventional showers of rice and shoes as good omens for the future happiness of the newly wedded couple. At Martells they took the train on a bridal tour to San Francisco and Los Angeles. They expect to return in two weeks, and will make their home at Electra, where Mr. McLaughlin is employed by the Standard Electric Company as electrician. The bride is a native of Jackson, and deservedly popular with a large circle of acquaintances. The Ledger extends congratulations, and wishes the happy couple a long life of matrimonial felicity.

An Owl Electrocuted.

Last Friday evening there was a brilliant electrical display toward Sutter Creek. It was about nine o'clock, and a number watched the unusual phenomenon from Jackson. They were at a loss to understand the cause of it, although it was evident that something was amiss with the power line. Reports were soon current that a transformer either at the Central Eureka or South Eureka had burned out. These reports, fortunately proved to be erroneous. It seems the scene of the display was on Sutter hill, near the reservoir. An enormous owl had short circuited the line by coming in contact with both wires. It was electrocuted in short order. Its charred body was afterwards found lying underneath the line. The ground thereabouts also bore evidence of the work of the destructive current. However, no damage was sustained by the line, and the power supplying the mines in that vicinity was only slightly interrupted. It is probable that the night bird was attempting to fly between the two wires, and in so doing its outstretched wings came in contact with both wires, and so brought on the display of fireworks.

There were six wires constituting the power line, and the interruption thus caused threw the greater part of the current onto the other lines. The grounded current charged a barbed wire fence, the lightning dancing up scores of feet and lighting up the whole country for miles around. It was a sight beautiful and yet awe-inspiring. The bars of the wire fence were found upon examination to have been burned off for a considerable distance.

Midnight Fire at Campo Seco.

For the second time within a period of nine months Campo Seco narrowly escaped being destroyed by fire. Last Saturday night just at midnight the blaze was discovered, but despite the efforts of many citizens it could not be checked until a store, saloon and two other buildings had been burned to the ground. Nothing is known as to the origin of the fire.—Stockton Independent.

Quit Teaming Business.

D. McCall has retired from the teaming business in the delivery of oil and other supplies from the Martell depot to the various mines throughout the county. The last loads were delivered on Wednesday, and that evening the mules and horses in the outfit were turned out to pasture for a much needed rest. Do what work they will be put to this season is at present unknown, whether on the railroad extension to the timber country, or in the saw mill business for the Amador Lumber Co., remains to be seen. The withdrawal of the McCall teams from the freighting business throws upon each mine the work of securing haulage of supplies from the depot to the works. They may conclude to contract for the same or do the work with their own teams.

The laying of the pipe line from Martells to the oil tanks of the Kennedy mine has been completed, and the pumping apparatus is being rushed to completion as speedily as possible. This will solve the difficulty as far as oil delivery at the Kennedy is concerned.

DIED SUDDENLY OF HEART DISEASE.

How frequently does a head line similar to the above greet us in the newspapers. The rush, push and strenuousness of the American people has a strong tendency to lead up to valvular and other affections of the heart, attended by irregular action, palpitation, dizziness, smothered sensations and other distressing symptoms.

One of the prominent ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made are recommended by some of the leading writers on Materia Medica for the cure of just such cases. Golden Seal root, for instance, is said by the UNITED STATES DISPENSARY, a standard authority, "to impart tone and increased power to the heart's action." Numerous other leading authorities represent Golden Seal as an unsurpassed tonic for the muscular system in general, and as the heart is almost wholly composed of muscular tissue, it naturally follows that it must be greatly strengthened by this superb, general tonic. But probably the most important ingredient of "Golden Medical Discovery," so far as its marvelous cures of valvular and other affections of the heart are concerned, is Stone root, or Collinsonia Can., Prof. Wm. F. Felt, author of Felt's Epitome of Medicine, says of it:

"I not long since had a patient who was so much oppressed with valvular disease of the heart that his friends were obliged to carry him up-stairs. He, however, gradually recovered under the influence of Collinsonia, the medicinal principle extracted from Stone root, and is now attending to his business. Microscopical physicians knew of no remedy for the removal of so distressing and so dangerous a malady. With them it was all guess-work, and it fearfully warned the afflicted that death was near. But Collinsonia unquestionably affords relief in such cases, and in most instances effects a cure."

Stone root is also recommended by Drs. T. H. and Ellingwood, of Chicago, for valvular and other diseases of the heart. The latter says: "It is a heart tonic of direct and permanent influence."

"Golden Medical Discovery" not only cures serious heart affections, but is a most efficient general tonic and invigorator, strengthening the stomach, invigorating the liver, regulating the bowels, and curing catarrhal affections in all parts of the system.

The Newborn and the Dead.

Lavater in his "Physiognomy" makes the following curious remarks: "I have had occasion to observe some infants immediately on their births and have found an extraordinary resemblance between their profile and those of their father. A few days after this resemblance almost entirely disappeared. The influence of the air and food and probably the change of posture had so altered the design of the face that you could have believed it a different individual. I afterward saw two of these children die, one at six weeks and the other at four years of age, and about twelve hours after their death they immediately recovered the profile which had struck me so much at their birth, only the profile of the dead child was, as might be expected, more strongly marked and more terse than that of the living."

Spider Chased a Man.

A story is told by an explorer of a large and fierce spider, an American spider which chases men if they come too near its lurking places. On one occasion he was pursued by one. "Riding at an easy trot over the dry grass," he writes, "I observed a spider pursuing me, leaping swiftly along and keeping up with my beast. I aimed a blow with my whip, and the point of the lash struck the ground close to it, when it instantly leaped upon me and ran up the back of my neck. I was actually within three or four inches of my hand when I felt the whip from me."—London Standard.

Arranging Chrysanthemums.

In the arrangement of chrysanthemums the Japanese guard against seven faults. Their stems must not be of the same length, a single flower must not turn its back or present its full face, the flowers must not be hidden by leaves, or should they be arranged in the way of steps, a full blown flower should never be placed at the base of the composition, and one odd one must not be allowed to fall between two others alike in color. Three flowers should not appear to form a triangle.

Woman's Diplomacy

[Original.]

Providence, who manages all things wisely and economically, wastes no talents on man for the management of woman. The wisdom of this course is that man needs no such talent until after marriage, and after marriage he has a wife to manage other women for him. The economy consists in the fact that men shall marry. A single man never appreciates the sensitiveness of the opposite sex. Woman hides her wounds, and man often stamps through her feelings with seven league boots.

An incident that occurred to me after my marriage taught me this, and since then I have invariably left the settlement of my differences with other women to my wife. I had passed middle life before marrying. I had met ladies, as other bachelors meet them, socially, but my club was my home, and I was never thrown into intimate association with any woman. But I considered myself sufficiently mild mannered and deferential to the softer sex for all ordinary social purposes. What would I have indicated if I did not know, nor was I conscious of having indicated any.

The honeymoon over, my wife took me in training, and it soon became apparent that I needed a great deal of it. However, in about a year I supposed I was thoroughly educated. One day my wife informed me that her dearest friend, whom she had not seen since we had been married, was coming to visit her, and she was especially anxious that I should make a good impression. I was desired to be on my guard and put on my most affable and deferential manner.

The first evening of Miss Bland's arrival my wife, my sister and our guest sat down to a game of whist. I was of course assigned to play with Miss Bland. I got on swimmingly. I saw that my partner knew little of the game, and it gave me an opportunity to show my wife that I could pass her friend's mistakes without the slightest reference to them. I would probably have gone through the evening without trespassing on my partner's feelings had not she made a mislay that gave me an opportunity, as I thought, to make a brilliant strike in soothing her.

I had a fine long suit, all of which I could make if I could draw my opponents' trumps; but, having only four trumps myself, all depended upon my partner's husbanding hers. My wife led a small spade, and I, desiring to get the lead, put on the king. When my partner played, the trick was mine. She trumped it. I winced, but said nothing. My partner's error gave our opponents the odd trick.

"I shouldn't have trumped your trick, should I?" said Miss Bland, redden.

My wife explained to her that to trump one's partner's trick was not considered always the best course, but that in this case it didn't matter since we were playing for fun.

I didn't see the fun in playing that way, but refrained from comment.

"Now I think of it," said Miss Bland, much mortified, "somebody told me once that to trump one's partner's trick was the worst mistake a player can make."

My wife looked at me appealingly to say something to make my partner feel easier, and it was then I tried to soothe her.

"You only trumped my king. There is a worse thing than that," I said softly.

"What is it?" asked Miss Bland.

"To trump your partner's ace."

Miss Bland cast a quick glance at me, and I cast a glance at my wife, expecting to see approval in her face. I saw a frown.

There was an ominous tremor on Miss Bland's lip, and presently she arose, left the table and went upstairs.

"Now you've done it," said my wife as she left the room to follow her friend.

I walked up and down the floor cursing myself for a fool and wondering if my wife would be able to explain matters and get me out of the scrape. I also wondered how she would manage the diplomatic task. Of course she would tell Miss Bland—what else could she tell her?—that I had intended my remark to make her blunder seem less a blunder. But had I solely so intended it? Women are quick to see a slight, and perhaps Miss Bland might have detected a trace of sarcasm in my voice. "Thank heaven," I muttered, "it's woman against woman. I'm sure the more I excused myself the worse I would make the matter."

My wife returned, but without her friend.

"Well?" I asked eagerly.

"She's coming down presently, after she's got rid of the appearance of tears."

"Tears?"

"Of course. Do you suppose her feelings are sheet iron?" Then, seeing the pain she was inflicting on me, she added, "It's all right now."

"Did you tell her I intended?"

"What did you tell her?"

"Why, I told her that you had been a bachelor all your life, had lived at clubs and all that and hadn't been used to playing cards with women—in short, that."

"I didn't now any better."

"Yes."

"And it made her feel all right?"

"Yes."

"My love," I exclaimed, folding her in an embrace, "you're a brick. You can beat me at diplomacy every time."

Miss Bland came down, and the game proceeded. She and I became fast friends. ALEXANDER ELY.

At one time there lived in Worcester, Mass., an old negro who had a tremendous influence, religious and political, in the settlement where he lived. He occupied a little house owned by a prominent banker, but had successfully evaded the payment of rent for many years. No trouble came, however, until the banker was nominated to run for a political office. The next day the old negro came hobbling into his office.

"Well, Sam," said the banker, "I suppose you've come in to pay me some rent."

"Oh, no, boss," replied the old man. "I's just come in to tell de 'res' glad yo' is nominated and will tell de 'res' of dese nigger niggers to vote fo' yo' and to mention yo' at de same time, but I do rof' of my house is a-leakin', an' if 'tain't fixed I'll have to move out directly."—Lippincott's.
